Upon the consent of the parties, and upon the entry of an order of reference by a district judge, a full-time magistrate judge may conduct any or all proceedings in any civil case which is filed in this court, including the conduct of a jury or nonjury trial, and may order the entry of final judgment, in accordance with 28 U.S.C. § 636(c). In the course of conducting such proceedings upon consent of the parties, a magistrate judge may hear and determine any and all pretrial and posttrial motions which are filed by the parties, including case-dispositive motions. The reference to a magistrate judge may be vacated upon a proper showing, pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 636(c)(4).

(c) Direct Assignment to Magistrate Judge

The Court direct assigns a percentage of all civil cases to a magistrate judge. When a case is direct assigned to a magistrate judge, the clerk of court will provide the parties with a form to decline onsent via the Court's CM/ECF System. Any party may decline consent by signing and returning the form to the clerk in the manner directed on the form. A party will be deemed to have knowingly and voluntarily consented to proceed before the assigned Magistrate Judge if the consent form is not returned by the date stated on the form. If a party declines consent, the identity of the party declining consent will not be communicated to any judge, and the clerk will immediately reassign the case to a district judge by random selection.

A case shall be considered by a district judge for reference to a magistrate judge only if every party has consented to proceed before a magistrate judge. After the consent forms have been executed and filed on behalf of all parties, the clerk shall transmit them to the judge to whom the case has been assigned to consider the case for reference to a magistrate judge.

(e) Appeal

Upon entry of judgment at the direction of a magistrate judge pursuant to this rule, any appeal shall be taken directly to the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit, in the same manner as an appeal from any other judgment of this court.
